The pictures were all clear and distinct, making a thoroughly enjoyable entertainment.—Colones, N. Y., Republic, Mar. 7, 1905. At Barre opera house Thursday evening, January 25.

A Grim Tragedy

is daily enacted in thousands of homes as death claims in each one another victim of consumption or pneumonia. But when coughs and colds are properly treated, the tragedy is averted. F. G. Huntley of Oakland, Ind., writes: "My wife had the consumption and three doctors gave her up. Finally she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which cured her, and today she is well and strong." It kills the germs of all diseases. One dose relieves. Ancient Manuscripts.

The manuscripts of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries are in many cases almost illegible on account of the fading of the ink. At that time the lamp-black ink passed out of use and chemical inks became popular.

Origin of Christmas Customs.

Many of our Christmas customs are a mixture of Druidical and pagan observances. The use of the Christmas tree has descended from the German Druids. Dressing the houses and churches with green is a relic of pagan worship in Rome; so also is the sending of presents to and fro.

Neighbor.

"Neighbor" was originally "nigh boor," or the nearest residing farmer.

ADOPT FIVE ARTICLES

Morocco Delegates Working On Contraband.

WHEN THEY ADJOURNED

France and Spain to Patrol the Land Frontiers—Moroccan Customs Patrol on Sea Raises Chief Issue.

Algiers, Jan. 22.—The international conference on Moroccan customs assembled at the town hall here yesterday.

The presiding officer, the Duke of Almodovar, Spanish minister for foreign affairs, read messages from the Spanish Senate and Chamber of Deputies, expressing hope for a successful issue of the conference.

The Marquis Visconti Venosta, head of the Italian mission, replying in the name of the delegates, made a significant reference to the international character of the agreement to be concluded here. This was interpreted as referring to the Franco-German difficulty over the question of the international control of Morocco.

The conference adopted five of the sixteen articles in the report of the committee on contraband arms. Then as the sitting had lasted 2½ hours, discussion of the remaining articles went over until Wednesday, today being reserved for the ceremonies attending the feast day of King Alfonso.

The discussion brought out a long discourse from Sidi Mohammed El Mokri, the second of the Moroccan delegates. The draft of the report under discussion, besides providing repressive laws by the powers, charges the repression of contraband along the coast. Before a foreign ship they must notify the legation of the country to which the ship belongs and pending action on the part of the legation at Tangier, the Moroccan authorities shall install a guardian on board the ship. Upon the legation approving the seizure, the contraband cargo will be condemned, the proceeds going to the Moroccan treasury, while the fines will be distributed between the informers and the Moroccan treasury.

The draft gives France exclusive control over contraband on the Algerian frontier, and gives Spain exclusive control along the frontier of Spain's possessions in Morocco.

The general principle of the plan is to leave the coast surveillance with the Moroccan customs, but as the question of France administering the customs contains remains open.

The Oldest Known.

A French medical paper prints what is believed to be the oldest known medical recipe. It is a tonic for the hair, and its date is 4000 B. C. It was prepared for an Egyptian queen and required dogs' paws and asses' hoofs to be boiled with dates in oil.

Reed Pens.

Reed pens split at the end like quill pens have been found in Egyptian tombs dating probably 2,500 years before Christ.

Stone Buildings.

A thousand years hence all the stone buildings now standing in Europe will have crumbled to dust. So perishable is the material of which they are constructed that the process of decay is already evident in many famous buildings. Neither marble nor brownstone can withstand the action of the elements.

HOME CIDER MAKING.

A Convenient Press For Turning Out A Few Gallons.

Thousands of bushels of apples go to waste every year that might be made into cider or vinegar or boiled cider if the people owning them only had a cider press. A homemade press like that the illustration shows will pay for itself every year, and when a few gallons of cider are wanted any time during the winter it can be made from the partly decayed or defective apples, cutting away the decayed parts. From ten to twelve gallons of cider may be made of an evening or rainy half day, says an Ohio Farmer correspondent in giving directions as follows:

Most of the material may be picked up around the farm, probably with the exception of the screw. A carpenter's bench iron screw should be used. A plank 2 by 12 inches and 12 feet long is needed for the press frame. Saw off two pieces four feet long and two pieces two feet long, cut a gain four inches from the end of each long piece and half an inch deep and as wide as the thickness of the short pieces; then spike the four together. For the cheese crib get two hoops made of heavy hoop iron, with holes punched about an inch and a half apart, and fill them with staves about two feet long and an inch and a quarter wide, and with small nails or screws fasten the staves inside the hoops, leaving them a quarter of an inch apart and with a false bottom to catch and conduct the cider. A hole should be bored in the cover half an inch deep for the end of the screw to work in; otherwise it might slip to one side and bend or possibly break it.

Mrs. C. H. White of 35 West Street says: "Not constantly but far too often to be pleasant, for a number of years I had severe attacks of backache. It was sometimes difficult to sit down and just as hard to rise, and despite the fact that I exhausted all my knowledge of simple household remedies all the results I ever obtained were merely temporary. I was in pretty bad shape for some time, suffering both day and night, when I was induced to go to E. A. Drown's drug store for a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. I knew after a dose or two that they were working directly upon the kidneys, and as I continued the treatment relief became more positive. When I finished it that particular attack disappeared. I found Doan's Kidney Pills so effective a remedy to kidney complaint that I am certain that any person annoyed with backache or any of the incident ills which follow in the wake of either weakened or overtaxed kidneys will find relief if not positive cure, if they take a course of the treatment."

Sold for 50 cents by all dealers. Foster-McIlhenny Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.
